LA LINEA, Spain, July 24.—Canadian and Australian reinforcements disembarked from military transports today at Gibraltar. Transports also brought foodstuffs and war supplies of all kinds—anti-aircraft guns, planes, light and heavy artillery.

OTTAWA, July 24.—The report from La Linea, Spain, today that Canadian troops had disembarked at Gibraltar came as a surprise to high officials of the national defence department.

Defence Minister Ralston and Col. H. Desrosiers, deputy defence minister, would not comment on the report.

Canadian troops are now serving in Iceland, Greenland and the British West Indies and the 1st Division is in the United Kingdom, along with Royal Canadian Air Force fliers.

R.A.F. PLANES DROP BOMBS ON NAZI SHIP

Successful Forays Over the North Sea Are Made By Aircraft

LONDON, July 24.—A German auxiliary vessel with a naval escort was hit yesterday in the North Sea by anti-submarine planes of the fleet air arm, the Admiralty announced tonight.

An engagement early today between a British motor torpedo boat and a German torpedo boat in the English channel ended in a second communion. The swift German boat fled, the Admiralty said, but "it is thought that casualties were inflicted on the German."

In the North Sea, one of the German naval units, an escort vessel of the Konig Luise type, was hit by a torpedo, the Admiralty said. The British aircraft returned safely, it added.

The announcement said the German ships were located in the eastern part of the North Sea last night. But an account of the engagement and attack in the early hours with Swordfish planes which sweep low over the water to launch their torpedoes.

British counterparts on German or German-held territory were outlined by the rightly astounded communists.

Air raids last night included aircraft factories at Gotha, Kassel and Wenzendorf, oil depots at Hamburg and Geisenkirchen and railways, anti-aircraft batteries and armaments factories in Germany and The Netherlands.

Bombers attacked patrol boats in Dunkerque harbor, France, yesterday afternoon, and took off from The Netherlands, and docks at Amsterdam, during the night.

One plane failed to return and two German planes were reported shot down.

ISTANBUL, July 24.—Earth tremors were felt during the night at Trebizond, Black Sea port in the Armenian section of Turkey, and at Kelkit, about 100 miles to the south. No casualties were reported.

They Find Sweet Slumber In Safe Sanctuary

Safe and sound in their homeland once again, these tiny tots slumber on in a coach of a special C.N.R. train which is speeding them westward from an eastern Canada port at which they landed from England. They are Donald, 7, and Marilyn, 3½, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Logan, 9923 108 street, who with their mother and father have been evacuated from Britain. Donald, a C.N.R. hero, is accompanying them back to Edmonton. And while they travel these tots and their dolls sleep away the speeding miles, with no air-raid bombs to disturb their sweet slumber.

$1,500,000 PROJECT FOR GRAIN TRADE

Storage Capacity For Additional 30,000,000 Bushels Planned

Storage capacity for an additional 30,000,000 bushels of grain will be provided by the western grain elevator trade in the three prairie provinces by fall, it was announced from a survey made Wednesday by The Bulletin.

Members of the last war cabinet named in what may be the prelude to a purge included Georges Mandel, former minister of interior, Caesar Campbell, minister of the navy, Edward Daladier, prime minister when war broke out, and Yvonne Delbos, former education minister.

COURT MARTIAL

In some cases provision is made to try by court martial, especially if members of the government or parliament who left the country at a time when they had been mobilized into the armed services.

Indeed, on this list are former minister of national education Jean Paul Viennot, Mendez France, once a popular minister in the Popular Front government, and his son, the late George Mendez France, former deputy Alexis Willzer.

U.S. WILL SEND 3,000 AIRPLANES MONTHLY TO U.K.

LONDON, July 24.—Lord Beaverbrook, minister for aviation production, declared in a broadcast tonight that the United States will approve a production plan to supply Great Britain with 3,000 planes monthly.

He declared in a broadcast tonight that Britain had purchased 12,000 airplane engines from the United States since his ministry was formed May 14.

It is but natural, he says, by every means we can develop our air force device to add up to give our air force bigger and better advantages when we come to grips with the enemy.

He added Britain's own aircraft production reached a record production last week, and that the output so far for this month was double that of the same period a year ago.

HITLER "PEACE" OFFER IGNORED BY CHURCHILL

LONDON, July 24.—Prime Minister Churchill, in a speech to the House of Commons last night, included Britain's foreign policy, the rearmament of the Royal Air Force, and members of parliament coldly ignored Hitler's "peace ultimatum" yesterday in the first session of parliament since the Nazi dictator had demanded Friday for an end to the war on his terms.

Standing on the declaration Monday night that foreign secretary Vinton Hailsham, "the flesh shall not stand fighting till freedom is secure," parliament received a calm mood proposal for an armistice, a flat tax, imposition of a sales tax, and sundry other demands on the Hitlerites' pocketbook.

It was but a suggestion, however, and the outcome so far for this month was double that of the same period a year ago.

BRITISH REPLY TO HITLER BID IS MORE ACTION

LONDON, July 24.—A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the Overseas League yesterday that the British Commonwealth of the British Commonwealth to the Hitler peace bid was to prepare more insistently than ever for war.

"This lion doesn't merely go out to defend its young—the cubs come home with great strength to defend the parent," the First Lord said.

One plane failed to return and two German planes were reported shot down.

Rupee Bills

BOMBAY, July 24.—To combat hoarding the government of India has imposed a temporary issue of one-rupee bills, as in the first Great War. The rupee is normally the equivalent of one shilling six pence, about 33 cents.

NO SOLUTION YET FOUND TO SOCIAL CREDIT

Low Tells Banking Committee Hope Not Yet Lost

OTTAWA, July 24.—Wheat and barley are being sold "at the present price" and "no solution has been found yet," the Commons Committee on Banking and Commerce was told today.

Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer, told the committee he had no hope of paying dividends and declared it was physically impossible to do so.

The committee continued discussions on the application from Alberta for a chartered bank to be opened by the provincial government.

Replies to a question from Hughes Cleaver (Lethbridge), Mr. Low said it was not the intention of the province to seek payment of Social Credit dividends until the province obtained legislative authority to introduce Social Credit.

Mr. Low was frequently in touch with John Blackmore, New Democracy leader in the Commons and sponsor of the bill, and Mr. Low's attitude toward the bill was that it was "a good bill" and he supported it.

STRASSER IS REPORTED IN GERMAN HANDS

Young Herschel Grynszpan Also Said In Custody Of Gestapo

BERLIN, July 24.—Otto Strasser, exiled son of Nazis who is charged by the Gestapo with organizing the Munich bomb plot on the life of Hitler, and Herschel Grynszpan, a young Polish Jew who killed a member of the German embassy staff in Paris, were reported today to have fallen into German hands.

A German source said Grynszpan was found in La Santa prison in Paris, where he had been held pending trial for the slaying of Ernst Von Rath, the German ambassador there.

Grynszpan is held for trial on charges of murder and the killing of Von Rath was shot Nov. 7, 1938, by Grynszpan, then 17 years old, and died two days later.

ANXIOUS DISORDERS

Widespread anxiety and disorders broke out in Germany as a result of Von Rath's death and Nazis assessed German Jewry $400,000,000 fine.

Sixty thousand were deprived of German citizenship in March, 1934, and thereafter his anti-Nazi Black Front organ, "Deutsche Rundschau," appeared under the Nazi Heil.

Reports on anti-Nazi activities from Greece and Switzerland until he was forced to leave and finally took up residence in Paris. In April he was arrested and released after he declared that Heinrich Himmler, head of German secret police, himself had organized the Munich bomb plot on Hitler's life.

and those abroad were reportedly by French authorities there under orders of the Pétain government.

In some quarters the decree was interpreted as a personal intervention of responsibility in French participation in the war and its conduct.

In other directions the government made no pronouncements.

Admiral François Darlan announced a program for reorganization of the merchant marine. It would include a new organization of the merchant service, increasing and modernizing the fleet.

Daladier Confined In City Of Marseille

NICHY, July 24.—Former Premier Edouard Daladier, whose government declared war on Germany last fall, was confined with the city of Marseille today under a curfew imposed by the Laval regime, marked for "Investigation" and possible punishment for alleged responsibility for France's entry into the conflict and for her defeat.

Also confined to Marseille pending "investigation" with Daladier were several other former government leaders and members of parliament who had been at the same port yesterday from French Morocco, whither they had sailed with Daladier on June 20. This was two days before the fall of the French-German armistice but according to the present government, three days after that armistice was signed.

The government of Premier Marshal Philippe Petain and Vice-Premier Pierre Laval was described as having entered the southern port yesterday from French Morocco, and it was added that "punishment will come for those responsible for France's entry into the conflict and for her defeat."

Britain Salvages All Waste Of Every Kind To Hoard Resources

By HAROLD FAIR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 24.—A rag, a bone or an old tin can—all are demanded for Britain's mighty war effort. The country is borrowing all from the dictators' system of economic self-sufficiency.

How far, however, the campaign against waste is saving and salvaging is not dictated by poverty of resources. Britain wants to produce as much food and recover as bit of scrap as valuable shipping space may be reserved for essential war material and foreign exchange is conserved to buy it.

In this country, you don't save anything. Britain's waste bins are overflowing with cigarette ends. The old iron sick of bedsteads in some dark basement has definite scrap value. The Red Cross agricultural committee is buying.

Students in Liverpool go from door to door as rag-andbone merchants. Birmingham offers its garbage—old clothes, shoes, broken pencils, hundredweights of waste paper. Southgate, in North London, opened a "Victory dump." In less than a year the amount of waste salvaged has increased five-fold.

SAVE WOOD

The "Dig for Victory" campaign brought results in thousands of vacant lots turned into small gardens. The Royal Home Guard Victory appeal to women appears destined for success. The higher the cost of living, the more wood is saved.

MORE THAN 60 BRITISH NAZI PLANES CLASH

evening communiqué of the Ministry of Home Security said merely:

SLIGHT DAMAGE

"This afternoon enemy aircraft dropped bombs on a town in the southeast of England, causing slight damage and a few casualties."

One plane, which was dropped by enemy aircraft in a district in the southwest of Scotland. Little damage was done and no one was seriously injured.

More than 100 planes were dropped by six planes swooping down upon shipping off the south-east coast.

The fighters crashed in the middle of a field near some cottages. The other was forced to land in a cornfield.

Striking at shipping off the southeast coast, German bombers were engaged by British fighters and one of the bombers plunged into the sea the other fled.

Another bomber was shot down by RAF fighters of the Welsh coast guard militia announced.

The Germans claimed a convoy in the Thames estuary.

While they were bombing the merchant ships, squadrons of the Royal Air Force swooped and the raiders were forced to land where watchers said the British planes dived on them.

The pilot of the plane which nose-dived into the street was found dead and his remains were recovered.

The other pilot was seriously injured by machine-gun bullets.

BOMBER DOWNED

An air ministry communiqué announced an enemy bomber was shot down early today by anti-aircraft fire and crashed.

The pilot was seriously injured by machine gun bullets.

LARGE ORDER

One line company manager stated Wednesday that prior to the war the firm had placed an order for 50 large size scales for future delivery. These will be used at elevators points where small scales are now being used. This conversion will be completed at designated points which will be easily identified by the crop yield in the district.

Very few new houses will be built this year, it was learned, but practically every line company has placed an order for 100 new houses.

Striking at shipping off the southeast coast, German bombers were engaged by British fighters and one of the bombers plunged into the sea the other fled.

Another bomber was shot down by RAF fighters of the Welsh coast guard militia announced.

The Germans claimed a convoy in the Thames estuary.

BUILDINGS DAMAGED

One raider dropped high explosive and incendiary bombs on a southwest Scotland area, damaging buildings.

An 8-year-old woman was wounded in the arm by a machine gun bullet when a raider flew over a small town, outskirts of a northeast England town.

A third raider was brought down in southwest England.

One of the crew was killed, one wounded and the other two were taken prisoners.

TOTAL RAISED TO $1

Reports that a bomber was brought down by fighter planes in the night off the southeast coast of Britain were denied yesterday by anti-aircraft fire experts off England raised the total to five.

A steamer was attacked by raiders this morning off the southwest coast. Other ships were standing by.

Meanwhile as the familiar drumming of anti-aircraft fire rolled off the British coast, the British said that to have luxury overseas and to face the highest taxation of their lives.

Only criticism of Sir Kingsley Woods, new budget, called for taxation of $1,061,500,000 in a year was that it was not stiff enough.

Brillins in moderate circumstances will want 42½ per cent of their pay for rent, heating, lighting, food, beer, tobacco and amusements, but they were pleased to note expert figures indicating their efforts are more effective and that the Royal Air Force is well on the way to approaching that of the Germans.

Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the "French National Committee" in London, appealed to Frenchmen to return to continue the fight against Germany.

He said French operations on land and sea would be resumed soon.

Registration Procedure

It is to be hoped, as there is some prospect, that the regulations will be changed so as to permit people to make out their registration forms at home, take them to the registrar's office and there attest to their accuracy. The original regulations require that the forms must be filled in at the office.

It is easy to foresee the congestion bound to occur if this arrangement is adhered to. There are eighteen questions on the list for women, nineteen for men. Any reasonable time allowance per head, multiplied by the number of registrants in a district, means congestion at the registration places.

There is the other consideration that mistakes are more likely to be made if forms have to be filled out in a crowded registry office than if each person is allowed to complete his return in the quiet of his home; and the penalties for making wrong entries in a form are pretty severe. The registration can be got along with more satisfactorily, and the information is more likely to be accurate, if the filling-in can be done at leisure and without distraction.

Hiring Versus Stealing

All French merchant ships in British ports are to be hired for the duration of the war. When the fighting stops the owners will be paid rental for their use, and the vessels will be returned to them in good repair.

These ships have come into British possession because the Pétain cabinet deliberately broke France's solemn compact with Britain and changed France from an ally into a country at least nominally hostile.

Such are the ways of democracy. The ship-owners, and French people generally, now have personal knowledge upon which to compare this treatment with the way the dictators use property that falls into their hands through the fortunes of war.

Are the German and Italian authorities paying rent for the French territory they occupy, the mines and industries they are operating for their own purposes, the buildings, railways and other property they are occupying and using—or even paying for the food supplies they have commandeered and shipped to Germany?

Among the differences between democratic and totalitarian methods is the difference between fair dealing and thievery.

A Blockade Forming

The House of Commons has given second reading to the unemployment insurance bill, thereby endorsing the principle of the measure. The Commoners have thus agreed that a national unemployment insurance system should be set up, that it should be on a contributory basis, and that it should be established now.

But the correspondents at the capital predict a stiff fight in the Senate, with a banding together of all hostile interests to prevent the bill passing at the present session, and with some prospect that it may be blocked. The general ground of opposition, already disclosed, is that unemployment insurance should not be introduced now, nor until the end of the war.

Five years ago, when the Bennett Government brought in a measure of the kind the argument was raised that the times were not propitious; there was so much unemployment in the country that great numbers of wage-earners would not be able to contribute. Such a system, it was urged, should only be set up when employment was plentiful, when wage-earners would be able to contribute and thereby create a substantial fund on which to draw when employment became scarce. And there was some reason in that contention.

But now, it appears, we are to be told that unemployment insurance should not be introduced when times are relatively good, when employment is growing more and more plentiful, and contributions can be made; action should wait until the war ends, war work ceases and employment goes into another post-war slump.

These contradictory objections, simply work out to the conclusion that there never is a time when opponents of unem-

HIS EYES WERE have no relation to the worth and sincerity of service. I've been reading a sketch of the career of the late Charlie Chaplin, the little cross-eyed comedian of the custard pie and Hollywood. He died a couple of weeks ago at the age of 71, living happily in comfort from the earnings of his cross eyes and amusing antics.

He had his struggles, from a lad of seven on New York's east side till he entered the silent films at over 30 years of age. In the interval he had begged as a hobo from backdoor to backdoor till he and a partner got a booking in Brooklyn at $20 a week for the team.

Ben used to hold his eyes off centre in his act till one night his right eye slipped out of line—and his fortune was made. As a squat-eyed comedian he insured his eyes with Lloyd's of London for $10,000 against their growing straight again. Still, I don't advise any of the cash customers of this column to try squinting as a means of fortune. As intimated in the opening, Fortune is herself a cock-eyed dame.

On an unimportant picture, Mr. Turpin was introduced to a small, solemn little Englishman. They took a fancy to each other. When the little stranger, whose name was Chapman, started masking pictures of his own, he and Ben—a part at a good salary. One of this observer's memories is of seeing Charlie

It may be inferred that, like some of his generals, the rank and file, and German civilians as well, are not by any means sure that the attack can succeed, or that it will not end in disaster. Long ago it was written "He that boasteth when he putteth his armor on is not as he that boasteth when he taketh his armor off." Germans of the older generation, who were brought up to read the book in which this is to be found, may have recalled the passage as they heard the bragging predictions of the Fuehrer.

GO TO IT!

Helping us get established for the summer in our log cabin camp was one of our neighbors, a versatile, brawny man whose industry and skill abash me. He cannot read or write, and his ungrammatical but vivid speech would surprise most of us. He speaks a poor brand of English; but he has practical brains aplenty.

When we talk, perhaps accidentally, of improvements to be made—a road to be bettered, trees to come down, or a marsh to be filled, he, the man of action, forthwith goes and does the task, accomplishing wonders in a short space of time.

To me he is a long-legged sermon on the uselessness of doing at once whatever is thought desirable to be done. I tag him with the title, "Ye doers of the word."

Forgive us, patient Father, that in idleness we talk so much about good work, and are so slow to apply ourselves to the fulfilment of our vision. Pray us into Christian action. Amen.

Quicksilver In Canada

A sudden development of the production of quicksilver in Canada is one of the innumerable effects of the war. Quicksilver is an essential in the manufacture of munitions. There were known to be deposits in Canada, but there was scarcely any production because it could not well compete with the mines in Europe.

But with the war, the supply from Italy, Austria and Spain was cut off from Britain and production in British Columbia was rapidly developed, chiefly by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company. The price went up from $80 to $180 per flask of 75 pounds.

Two-thirds of the quicksilver requirements of the British Commonwealth are now being provided from British Columbia.

Other metals vitally important for war purposes which are being produced on an increasing scale in the same provinces include manganese, chrome, tungsten and antimony.—Winnipeg Free Press.

In The Orient

The cabinet crisis at Tokyo is a phase of the larger crisis which threatens to bring the war in the Far East. Admiral Yosai and his foreign minister, Hachiro Arita, have stood out strongly in supporting Japan up in a military alliance with the Axis powers. But they were forced, by army pressure, to go a long deal further than they desired in the direction of helping the Germans and Italians by making Japan a nuisance to Great Britain. Their moderation, however, has proven their undoing. The army representative in the cabinet, General Mata, resigned the other day and the cabinet has now fallen.

The new Japanese chauvinism undoubtedly puts Great Britain in a tight spot. She has her hands full in Europe and does not want another war in Asia.—Vancouver Province.

The Edmonton Bulletin publishes a special edition to mark its 60th birthday, and appropriate place on the front page is given to the picture of the late Hon. Frank Oliver, founder of the newspaper in 1880 and published it until 1925.

The story often has been told of Mr. Oliver hauling to Edmonton by ox-cart the tiny hand press from which the first copies of his paper were printed. He had the far vision of the true pioneer, and he and his beloved Bulletin grew up with the West, giving it devoted service.

Mr. Oliver presently sold the Bulletin and his final years were spent in Ottawa, but under the present publisher, Mr. Charles E. Campbell, he has pursued the tradition of its founders as a vigorous, outspoken, intelligent editor of public interest. This diamond jubilee number is full of interesting matter about Edmonton and Alberta and of course about the Bulletin itself and its founder. First place properly goes to an article by Mr. John Oliver, a son of the founder, who is a member of the Bulletin's staff.—Ottawa Journal.

Eire

When the war came and the Eire Government decided to stay neutral, the Government of the United Kingdom were made acquainted with the reasons, understood the reasons, and accepted them. Through the Irish High Commission in London, Mr. Dulany, and the British High Commissioner in Dublin, Sir John Mahaffey, the Brit. Vice-Admiral, and the Chamberlain Government understood clearly what each country was about.

Actually, at that time, Eire's neutrality was not important. To begin with, Southern Ireland is not a country of rich resources. It could not supply Great Britain with ships, or shells, or guns, or steel, or any other war material. Its contribution to the war could only be in the shape of raw materials.

Both of these have been given. According to reliable estimates, there are upwards of 40,000 southern Irishmen serving in the British army, some going from Ireland to enlist, others enlisting while residents of the United Kingdom; while steady supplies of foodstuffs have continued to cross the Irish channel.—Ottawa Journal.

Tuberculosis of the lungs is as active in the body, either in the past general rule, not found early or present. It does pick out those enough. On an average, of every three cases coming to the attention of the family physician, two will be early and the third stage, rather than advanced. And in other cases, the months extend into years.

The treatment depends primarily upon the patient. Plenty of physical and mental rest, plenty of fresh air, an adequate diet and limitation of strenuous exercise—these fundamentals should be included in the early part of the treatment. In this disorder, recovery depends to a large extent upon getting the operator and the healing forces of the body into action.

Pulmonary tuberculosis is usually overlooked in the early stages because the first symptoms are so slight. The patient may notice he is tiring more easily than is normal or that he has a slight cough which is worse in the morning or after meals, or that he is slightly losing weight. Frequently, these symptoms are so insidious that the patient himself is hardly aware of them. However, an examination of the chest with the stethoscope will usually uncover the early cases. Treatment must then be started before the disease becomes advanced. Early treatment offers the best outlook as to eventual cure.

Another step which is helpful in finding tuberculosis is to give a tuberculin test. However, it is necessary to remember that a positive reaction to a tuberculin test does not invariably mean that tuberculosis is active at the time the test is given. It means that at some time the causative bacilli have been

McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. McKENNEY, America's Card Authority

The rule of eleven is a short cut in inference that can be applied to the lead of a fourth-best card. Subtract the denomination of the card from eleven. If the difference is higher than the card led, that are outside the hand of the leader.

The lead of a ninth card opens the spade bid, the fourth-best of his hand can now apply the Rule of Eleven—11 minus the value of the ninth card, which is the number of cards in the hand minus six-spot held by the three hands other than West. Since both East and South see two of these hands, each leaves the ninth card and higher spades in the unheld hand of his opponent.

In this case the inference is of no value since both South and West held the eighth spot. That play of this card from dummy gives him three entries to the hand of the declarer. When the diamond is led, King falls, declarer knocks out easily. Had South carelessly played the five-spot from dummy on the first spade lead

BIG CROWDS VISIT RED DEER FAIR

Record crowds attended the second day of Red Deer's Jubilee Fair yesterday. A brief shower fell in the early evening but did not last long and the afternoon was bright and sunny.

One of the largest crowds in point of numbers was on hand yesterday afternoon and all grandstand space was packed and an overflow was accommodated across the tracks. Charlie Yule, president of the Calgary Exhibitors' Board, officially opened the fair in the afternoon, being introduced by Red Deer Fair President Vic Bjorklund. Many performances again drew capacity crowds.

Members of the Red Deer Kinsmen Club are manning the gates at the fair this year to help out the agricultural society. Local and the Dominion government grants have made it necessary to pay expenses.

Wednesday, the last day of the fair will be the grand opening, with a full program of platform attractions afternoon and evening, with races and the Dead Dodgers in the afternoon. A colorful feature on afternoon will be the marching parade of prize winning live-stock.

LLOYDMINSTER FAIR PLANNED AUGUST 5 TO 7

The Lloydminster exhibition, to be held August 5-7, promises to provide all and sundry with some real high class entertainment. August 6, usually known as Farmers' Day, will also be Old Timers' Day. A large marquee is to be erected on the grounds by the Barr Colonist and Old Timers' Association where they and others in the district can gather and chat over "tales of the trail of 1903."

Returning for the fair will be all of last year's crowd-pleasing entertainments, including a band led by Jimmy Lynch, Death Dodgers, Wallace Bros. Midway, and others.

The Cree chief said to his women, "as-wat-ic," meaning scater, and like two families of particular tribes, one of right and one of left, twinkle the Indians backed up and waved their arms, meaning peace. The chiefs smoked the peace pipe and the Indians chanted the war song of the hill thus sealing a temporary peace pact. From this came the Cree Indian name, or combination of names, We-sau-ka-ni, meaning in the "Hill of Peace." The original name was Wetuskeewin, "having peace."

Red Cross Workers Asked To Continue Knitting During Brief August Holiday

JASPER JOTTINGS

By FAY PARKER

JASPER, July 24.—The younger generation of Jasper is staying a "Kiddies Circus" August 1-3. It all started in a small way but has been growing rapidly. Now it seems on the way to being the event of the summer. Since a young lad thought it would be a good idea to have a booth used for cigarettes for the soldier boys passing through. Like many another good idea it has spread and now there are booths with costumes, summer visitors are drawn to the various enterprises of the "Circus" and government officials are loaning tents.

Camille Dixon, who has an older brother in the C.A.S.F. in England, is the brains behind the idea and his younger brother, Bob, is the "city man." Jacqueline Drive is assistant director of the program and her tiny dancing pupils will be part of the show.

Don't forget that the national headquarters in Toronto will move to new premises, with larger warehouses.

MORE KNITTING

Although the society is asking for a great deal more knitting work a great deal more knitting is needed, including socks, hats, helmets, gloves, seamen's stockings and all comforts for sailors.

SMART SUITS TO REMAIN WARDROBE FIRSTS FOR "DURATION"

OF SUMMER

Always smart and practical in spring and early summer, this year suits are to remain highlighted all during summer because of their color and style. A good example of this is Vera Maxwell's new long torso suit, which has a wrinkle resistant fabric, a skirt and a jacket of beige linen. It also comes in single-breasted style, with long sleeves. At right is a summer suit of lightweight diagonal tweed which will be handy on cool days when your sheers and prints won't be warm enough in town. The jacket, incidentally, goes perfectly with slacks.

Calgary Teacher Has Exciting Passage Across Atlantic

TORONTO, July 24—Miss Alice Campbell, Calgary, has arrived in Toronto today after a year of exchange teaching in England with enough exciting war tales to keep her at sea edges for another year.

Her ship was missed by two torpedoes. Five of her cousins were in an air raid and she had an opportunity to help bring the French people in Paris a few weeks before the French collapse.

Speaking in an interview here of a ship she was on last year, Miss Campbell said, "I was having breakfast when we heard the two shots of the torpedoes which missed us. I was terribly scared and got ready to run on deck with the rest of other people, but the stewards just ran on serving breakfast so I just sat down and went on eating."

Miss Campbell said she spent Easter in Paris and found the English terribly down at the mouth. They were having the longest faces. The English aren't like that. They're cheerful as ever—they seem to thrive on it."

Beloved Westlock Residents Mark Golden Wedding Day

GOLDEN wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Page was a happy occasion in Westlock recently when their children, grandchildren and many friends gathered to honor them at a delightful party and to extend congratulations and good wishes.

Married fifty years ago in Ottawa, Mr. and Mrs. Page resided there for ten years, coming to Alberta in 1900 to homestead near Westlock. They have seven children, thirteen children seven of whom are living and were present on the anniversary occasion. Many came from distant points for the celebration.

In hot days feet need a great deal more attention than in the cold weather. After a swim be sure to dry them thoroughly and finish off with a dash of eau de cologne and a massage. Be sure when you rub your feet to make the strokes upward toward the ankles and not toward the toe.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELIMES

After the first year milk should be looked upon as part of a good diet, but not the one and only necessary food. Children have teeth because they are intended to be used. A diet of all milk after the child is a year old is all out of key with his known needs. And more and more so as he grows.

Mrs. H. G. says her child is 32 months old and weighs 31 pounds. He doesn't want any solids at all. He has no appetite, eats only breakfast and has 12 hours of sleep. Will you reply through the paper?

If you had sent me a self-addressed and three-cent stamped envelope I could have had leaflets that would have been more speedy and to you in helping the child. There is no doubt but that as much milk as you are giving the child is causing him to grow on other foods. You are fooling yourself with the idea that as long as he has plenty of milk, it isn't an important part of his diet. That might have been true the first few months of life, but it is true no longer.

OFFER MEALS

Stop the milk until the child has learned to eat. Put the food in front of him and leave him with them for a few minutes after each meal, with or without milk, then take the foods away and wait until the next meal.

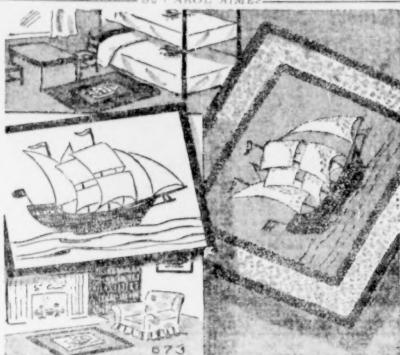

Start with mashed foods, if he hasn't learned to eat yet, give him cubed meat or vegetables and don't fuss if he eats them with his fingers. Put the milk as much as you can in the solid foods you offer. Scrambled eggs, milk, milk puddings, cottage cheese softened with milk, there are lots of ways to use milk.

Don't threaten him with no more milk, or will scare him into a defensive attitude which may make it necessary for him to starve himself in order to get the best of you. Just let him have what milk he may, and don't have any more.

Once you are determined conscientiously to give the child the kind of diet he needs, you'll have the stamina to keep saying "No milk today," until he has learned Always criticize your wife clothes. Tell her that her hat is a freak and that her world enemy must have given her a complex. Remind her that she is getting fat and losing her complexion.

Always talk about how much you admire the get-up-and-go type of woman who smokes and drinks, but give her half Columbia and threaten to leave her if she even looks at a cocktail.

Always be philandering around with some pretty young girl. It will make her mad enough so that you'll get her.

ANSWER—From all of which we gather that it is just as easy to lose a wife as it is a husband.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—I was very much interested in your article on how wives can help their husbands. May I tell you husbands a few things about how to lose their wives? A good way to do this is by being slovenly and suddenly appearing in the house, shaved, except when it is absolutely necessary. Go around in your stocking feet. Don't wash a clean face more than once a day, and always wear a hat. Scatter cigarette ashes on the floor. Leave all your soiled clothes and used towels on the floor. Turn on the gas when you get home behind a crease paper and never reply to anything your wife says. Merely grunt.

Never be on time for your meals. Stop by the postroom for a few games on your way home at the evening drop-in. At Benny's, have a drink. Nothing kills the love light in a wife's eyes like neglect.

Always remind your wife that the children's bad faults come from her inferior family. Call the child "my son" or "my daughter" when they take prizes at school or behave well. If she is bad, tell her when they are bad and mischievous.

Raise raves over the bills every month. Your husband has consumed all the food, monopolized all the heat and light, and worn all the shoes in the family. It is so disconcerting to a woman to be told that her slave and pinched every penny to feel that her husband does not appreciate her efforts to help him.

Always criticize your wife clothes. Tell her that her hat is a freak and that her world enemy must have given her a complex. Remind her that she is getting fat and losing her complexion.

Always talk about how much you admire the get-up-and-go type of woman who smokes and drinks, but give her half Columbia and threaten to leave her if she even looks at a cocktail.

Always be philandering around with some pretty young girl. It will make her mad enough so that you'll get her.

ANSWER—From all of which we gather that it is just as easy to lose a wife as it is a husband.

FRANCIE WESTON—a girl with spirit and ambition to crash the movies.

JERRY FINNEY—Movieland's young glamor man.

laugh was muted. When they stopped for lunch Gusty had said he wanted to make a movie star.

GUSTY—garage mechanic who has been trying to court Francie and Francie finds Gusty obnoxious.

At dusk they reached the mountain range and began a hard climb up the side of the mountain. Gusty's dizzy spell had long since passed and he was driving well.

GUSTY—garage mechanic who has been trying to court Francie and Francie finds Gusty obnoxious.

Yesterday Francie slogged the midnight plover with a lamp, knocked him down and then driving hard, has robbed Gusty. Mr. Weston and Francie find Gusty obnoxious.

Francie takes the ticket from Gusty, takes the ticket from his billfold.

CHAPTER VII

WHEN Francie emerged from the car, calling out to Gusty, Gusty and Mr. Weston were talking. Her heart sank. Was Gusty reporting her loss? She circled the cabin and entered the restaurant without seeing him.

Aunt Hat looked up from her eggs and sausage. "What a night! I'm as weak as a rag. Francie, do you have time to ask you for something?"

Aunt Hat looked up from her eggs and sausage. "What a night! I'm as weak as a rag. Francie, do you have time to ask you for something?"

"I've got it, Aunt Hat," Francie gulped. "Please, Gusty."

John Weston entered, wiping his brow. "That boy's got Lucifer's own pride. Made me take the money for his cabin."

Francie sighed. "I...that all you young fellows..."

Mr. Weston nodded. "Except that I finally persuaded him to my great at breakfast. He needs a good meal to regain strength back. He wouldn't eat if he had to pay for it himself."

Gusty came in, minus his usual gusto. His cheeks were still pale, his eyes shadowed. He sat down unsteadily and picked up a menu.

"Never mind that, son," John Weston's eyes twinkled. "I've ordered for you."

Gusty grinned. "Thanks, Gusty. I need some grub."

The room was filled with a frosty silence, broken by a faint sound of wind whistling over their heads.

"Holy smokes, I'm dizzy as a bat! I'll be driving the old bus around in circles. Any chance of getting me a driver, Mr. Weston?"

Francie said stubbornly. "I'm not going."

Mr. Weston took his daughter aside. "I don't intend to argue. Francie, Quarrel is no good. You're here to drive Gusty's car for him."

"I understand," Francie said.

"All right, Pops."

"That's better. Well hit the little mountain town of Circle about now. There's a good hotel listed. You and Gusty can meet us there."

Presently Francie was rattling westward in Gusty's old roadster. She drove with her chin set at a defiant angle. Gusty slumped on the end of his spine, his feet stuck out. In spite of herself, the wind whipped little tendrils of amber hair from under Francie's bright seal.

"Are you gonna talk?" he demanded finally.

"Why should I?"

"Aw, look, Francie, don't be sore. I would have dropped off last night. You and your dad were swell to me. I told him so, too."

Francie could feel the familiar softening process going on in her heart. She tugged it off with a bright smile. "Skip it."

"Nothing doing. It took a lot of nerve to whang Hubber over the head. I know I did a nerve. Gee, Francie, all we've done lately is scrap. We didn't use to."

"No, we didn't."

"It just doesn't seem in it," Gusty declared gravely.

They were silent a moment, staring off into the distance. The road arched over a hill, then descended a slope and finally curved into a range of smoke-blue mountains.

"No, there isn't..."

"Dad," Gusty said. "Funny how it all starts with that ticket!" The roadster swerved. "Hey, what's wrong?"

"Nothing," Francie said. "Nothing at all."

"You see, it's like this," Gusty continued. "I figure it's a man's place to have the career. That's why I joined the theater. Now we suppose we'll want to get married."

"Married?" Francie's heart beat a little joyous rhythm. "Why, Gusty, Gusty!"

"Oh, sure, it's a silly idea. I'm sorry. But, gosh, I am only trying to make a point. Just suppose. You know, a man's a movie star and have a garage mechanic for a husband. No sir! A man's place is at the head of the family, I mean."

"You—you mean that's why you took the ticket?" Francie asked. "Because you wanted to make good for me?"

"Well, I...," Gusty reddened. "I wouldn't exactly say that, but..."

"It was, Gusty!" Francie cried. "Okay, it was, then." Gusty gritted his teeth. "You'd better watch your driving."

Suddenly Francie felt as if the ticket were red hot inside her. Gusty was a pure knight facing all kinds of hardships for her sake. Oh, why hadn't she realized it before?

Gusty said, "You'd better stop at the next gas station."

Francie obeyed, trembling. When he pulled up, she ran up to him. But Gusty didn't look into the part of his wallet where the ticket had been. Oh, why hadn't she realized it before?

Francie thought, "Nothing must spoil this perfect day."

They drove on, and Gusty still sang his song of the trumpet pin. Held. Search around the camp for it. He sure hated to lose it. Francie told herself she'd find it. After all, when they reached Hollywood, then surprise Gusty.

The afternoon sped by with the usual bustle of movie life. Francie would never forget. Not once did Gusty leave his role of braggart. Even his donkey was bluffed. The beam of a flashlight blinded them. So—a necking with the hamburgers. He even assisted Francie from the car.

Gusty bridled. "Hold your horses, master. We're moving right on."

A burly state trooper approached the car. "Suppose somebody came around that curve and didn't see you?" You guys from the east ain't goin' nowhere."

"Maybe you western hicks got it all," Gusty fired back.

"He's half a mile away."

"Young fellow eh?" the trooper said. "It'd better take you in to Circle and cool you down."

Francie said. "We didn't mean to."

Gusty said, "Sure, we wouldn't take your lousy old mountain as a present."

"Okay, lad, I've had enough of your lip. I'll follow you in. Ten bucks and a night in the clink may teach you some manners."

"On your word," Francie wailed.

"White-lipped, Gusty hardened his face into its 'so-what' mask.

"I'll get to Hollywood all right, Francie. Don't you worry?"

Trawlers Defy Register Hit

LONDON, July 24.—Three fishing trawlers armed with machine guns shot off a German bomber Tuesday until British fighter planes drove the "aces" down.

"He missed us with eight bombs," one fisherman said. "We kept at him with machine guns and we hit him. That's certain."

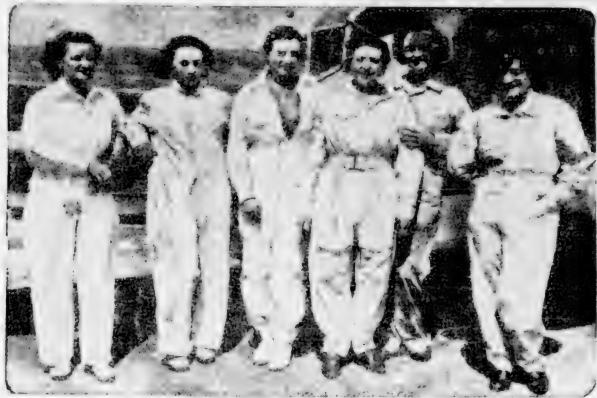

"The first fires came in like the wind. He bolted."

Two Lives Saved By New Coast Guard Plane

Here is one of the most dramatic photographs ever made of a coast guard life-saving operation. It shows a coast guard plane swooping down to rescue two men from the icy waters of Lake Superior off the coast of Mackinac. The two men were clinging to a small piece of wreckage which had broken off from a boat which had been crushed by the waves. The plane is shown just as it has dropped its life raft and is about to land on the water. The two men are seen hanging onto the wreckage, their faces pale with fear and exhaustion. The plane is flying low over the water, its propellers churning up spray. The background is a vast expanse of dark water under a cloudy sky.

FISTS FLY FREELY AS REDS BEAT DODGERS TWICE

Coscarart and Frey Start General Melee

BROOKLYN, N.Y., July 24.—Brooklyn Dodgers got into another brawl and out of the National League pennant picture in one long, turbulent scene Tuesday, dropping a doubleheader to Cincinnati Reds 4-3 in 11 innings and 9-2 in nine. Cincinnati's conquests in front of a crowd of 40,000 at Ebbets field increased the margin separating the two clubs to seven full games.

The first game was climaxed by a fight between Lonnie Frey of the Reds and Pete Coscarart of the Dodgers in the eighth inning. The Reds were trailing 3-2 at the time, and had Bill Werber on third base, a sacrifice and an error. Then Frank McCormick grounded to Paseo's Reese at short, who threw to Coscarart as he came sliding into second. He came in hard to forestall a double play.

As soon as Coscarart got his throw away he and Frey dived at each other. The two Brooklyn teams rushed into the melee. Pitcher Whitham Wyatt of the Dodgers, who still is bothered by a knee injury, was removed in the eighth with Frey last summer, got in several good licks with his glove as Frey lay prostrate on the ground.

Pitcher George Thompson of the Reds was hit in the right ankle and two stitches were necessary to close the gash. Coscarart also was spiked on the left knee in the fourth, but both survived.

When order was restored, Coscarart and Frey were out of the game by direction. Thompson was out with his injury and the score was 3-2, the latter having tallied on the critical play.

It took until the 11th to get another run across, but the Reds finally made it on a searching double down the left field line and by Ernie Lombardi's sacrifice.

The second game was a non-stop excursion for the Reds to their third consecutive victory of the year. The champions slammed four Brooklyn pitchers for 17 hits.

He was promoted to the Cubs in time to take over the first base assignment and he beat out a double and a handline to bring the title 5-4 but the locals came back with three runs in the ninth to bring the score 8-5.

Only 155,530 passengers were carried during the 1939 fair week.

The previous fair week record and the highest weekly traffic ever recorded was in July, 1934, when 367,059 passengers were carried.

Day-trip traffic during fair week will total 27,000 Monday, 6,450 Tuesday, 50,156 Wednesday, 47,330 Thursday, 61,837 Friday, 60,244 Saturday, 64,063. Out-of-town visitors will be lower than the corresponding daily totals of the 1939 fair.

Brighter Forecast Issued Wednesday: Showers Possible

Edmontonians are beginning to put on their Western wear as the very moody periods as before continue to offer this district one sudden change of weather after another. Tuesday morning was bright and showery all day and early Wednesday morning it was once again bright and shining with broken clouds. Official forecast calls for "fair weather with periods of rain and possibly higher temperatures."

Precipitation in the city Tuesday measured 25 inches. Highest temperature for the day was 76° while the average for the year was 46 above. At 8:30 a.m. Wednesday the mercury stood at 58 above, while a maximum reading of 27.59 increased the record.

Rain was falling Wednesday morning at Fort St. John, Dawson Creek, Peace River and Hythe. The rain continued through Grande Prairie, Spirit River and Fairview, and during the night at High Prairie, Grouard, Mirror Landing, Athabasca and Slave Lake. All points reported cloudy skies and threatening weather Wednesday morning.

EDMONTON—Arthur Bunting, 24-year-old grocer's assistant, said he didn't know England was at war with Germany, so he was unmoved before a conscientious objector's tribunal. He was assigned to agricultural work.

Ex-British Officer Imprisoned

Showed with his wife, Mary McGuire, Australian film actress, after their marriage last year is Capt. Roger Gorden Canning, British army retired, who reportedly has been imprisoned in England. At the time of his marriage, he announced that he no longer was connected with the outlawed Link organization.

Machine-Gunning Nazis Pursue City Folk's Kin In Flight From Belgium

Pursued day and night by machine-gunning Nazi bombers, who savagely sprayed refugee-packed roads with machine-gun fire, mistaken by hysterical French civilians for fifth columnists and continually suffering from lack of food and water for 150 kilometers of flight afoot through wartorn Belgium and France, was the experience of the niece of an Edmonton woman, Mrs. W. Carr, 7422 105A street. Mr. Carr works in the office of Gainers Ltd.

WINGS

Chief Pilot Bob Randall, Mackenzie Air Service, arrived in Edmonton Tuesday with eight passengers. Aboard were A. B. and J. Bennett of Bennett and White Aircraft Sales, Ltd., and Yellowknife, Capt. H. C. Craig from Fort Smith, Miss. J. Cobain from Wapiti, Miss. Helen Sowden and Miss Mitchell from the Anglican church hospital at Athabasca.

Their trip had left that very morning to join the Belgian army and one of the bombs struck the study of their home, the room that would have accommodated the 100 people had been home.

RAGING INFERNO

In a few minutes the town was a raging inferno of flame and Mr. Santeet's wife had to run the gauntlet of machine-gunning Nazis who sprayed the streets as the population fled toward the country roads.

Water supplies of the town had been cut by fifth columnists, making it impossible to successfully fight the flames.

Mr. Santeet displayed rare coolness by returning to the doomed town for two suit cases of money he had left behind.

He rode back to his wife on an old bicycle. The suitcases were punctured in many places with bullets, but Mr. Santeet escaped in a miraculous fashion.

After the flight of the couple was a nightmare.

Night after night they were forced to take refuge and seek what rest was possible in hedges, open fields, barns, garages, and even a cemetery near a penitentiary as the merciless bombing planes roared overhead.

ARRESTED AS SUSPECT

Finally they arrived in France, where Mrs. Santeet temporarily separated from her husband, narrowly escaped being arrested by gendarmes as a suspected fifth columnist. At last her husband appeared with identification papers and the dangers were past.

After harrowing adventures the Santeets reached Dunkirk, where passage was made to England. On the 10th of June, Capt. Heinzel came over and attempted to bomb the ship but was shot down by British Hurricane planes.

A vivid account of the escape was published in an English weekly paper, the Chronicle and Teas Times.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police had launched a search Monday when Mrs. Hicklin reported her husband had failed to return home from a day-long fishing trip up the Bow River Sunday.

Two New Road Machines Are Working Well

Only ones of their kind in the Dominion, two new road stabilization machines recently purchased by the provincial public works department are functioning smoothly and giving great satisfaction, according to Mr. W. Falloway, minister of public works.

It was decided to strike from the bill a provision which would have paid for those in relief and did not receive from among under benefits of the act which calls for the government, employers and employees to contribute to a fund for the unemployed, which would be made to participating workers when they became unemployed.

Yesterday the committee also heard representations from business and labor. Big business was for postponing enactment and labor welcomed the bill, suggesting a few amendments.

Two New Road Machines Are Working Well

One of the machines can be used as a plant mix, producing 200 tons an hour. Special types of soil have been obtained to obtain a proper aggregate mixture for roads, but the new machines provide a good mixture from available material.

One of the machines is working between Wetaskiwin and Ponoka and the other between Midnapore and Okotoks.
